ASSEMBLYMAN FROM MILWAUKEE SPONSORS MEASURE PROVIDING STATE OWNERSHIP OF STORAGE PLANTS.

ASK BUCK LAW REPEAL

Assemblyman Saugen of Eau Claire County Presents Petition at Session of Lower House This Morning.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

Madison, Jan. 30.—A constitutional amendment giving the state power to acquire, construct and operate grain elevators and storage plants, was offered in the assembly this morning by Assemblyman H. O. Kent, Milwaukee.

Less than a dozen measures were brought into the house today, owing to the fact that many of the members did not return until this morning. The session was less than half an hour long.

Bills introduced:

Crass—Extending the term of office of town supervisors to two years.

Crude—Each parcel of land shall be separately valued in condemnation proceedings.

Crude—Fixing the salary of chief clerks in the land office at $2,000 and their assistants at $1,800 and their stenographers at $1,600.

Crude—Hunting licenses shall be extended to all animals for which there is an open season, except deer, and shall extend to deer in the counties in which the holder thereof resides.

Crude—Providing for connection of storm sewers.

Buck Law Repeal Asked.

On behalf of Assemblyman E. A. Pearce, bills S and 28 for a modification and renumbering of the statutes, have been made a special order for Thursday morning.

Assemblyman Saugen of Eau Claire county, offered a long petition asking for repeal of the one buck law.

Assemblyman Edward F. Langdale, county president, presented a resolution which was unanimously adopted, demanding the sympathy of the assembly.

Assemblyman Chas. D. Keay, whose mother died last week, the assembly adjourned until tomorrow morning.

In the senate the following bills were introduced:

Pulkin—Requiring that persons in the public employ be registered by the state and that they shall return reports of their health conditions when asked to do so by the state board of health.

Convention Referendum.

Siskino—Providing for a referendum on a constitutional convention in 1918.

Wilcox—Providing that reviews of actions of the industrial and tax commission may be brought in the circuit in which the action originates instead of in the main circuit court.

Wilcox—Providing that in jury trials for offenses punishable by life sentence, the state and defense shall both be entitled to twelve preemptory challenges instead of twenty-four, under the present law.

Wilcox—Providing that partial payment on a mortgage shall be made part of the record of the mortgage.

Statute Revision.

In the discussion before the assembly today of the two bills offered for the revision of statutes, Speaker Whited said that these bills were simply a modification and rearrangement of the present laws and did not contain any new material.

"The policy has difficulties, but it is not like the measure offered two years ago," said Assemblyman Spoor.

"We were told at that time there were no changes, but afterward discovered radical changes had been made," he added.

Shortly after the session, Arthur F. Belitz of the staff of the reviewers of the statutes, came down to the assembly chamber and started to tell Assemblyman Spoor "he had never made such a statement; it looked as though trouble was brewing when Assemblyman Weston Woodward interceded and told Mr. Belitz that he had no business interfering with members of the legislature."

Compensation Act Changes.

Every person in Wisconsin, except farmers, who has one or more employees, will be subject to the terms of the workmen's compensation law if the bill offered by Assemblyman William Arneemann of Winnebago county is enacted into law. The bill is one of the most sweeping amendments that has yet been proposed to the act. The proposed law exempts four employers. The Arneemann bill would bring in every dentist's office with a doctor, every office in which a stenographer is employed, and so on.

Tony Pulling last night appointed Ray J. NYC, Superior, as a member of the grain and warehouse commission for a term of three years.

New Bills in Assembly.

Several bills offered in the assembly were:

Sorenson—Increasing the payment for the care of insane patient in county institutions from $1.75 to $2.25.

Carl Hansen—Prohibiting publishers from charging higher rate for political advertising than from any other class.

Streeter—The wide slate law.

McNamee—Providing for honorary badges for the Wisconsin soldiers and sailors in the Spanish-American war.

Gumper—Requiring formal notification in writing if a parent does not want a minor to play pool in pool halls.

New Berlin Warning Against Travel On Armed Allied Ships

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Washington, Jan. 30.—A warning to Americans not to take passage on ships armed by enemies of the central powers is expected here soon. Whether the warning will be conveyed to the state department through the American embassy in Berlin, or through the German embassy in Washington, is not indicated.

Reports that Great Britain and her allies were considering placing heavy armaments upon their merchant ships have been regarded in Germany as forecasting fights to a finish between armed merchantmen of the entente allies and submarines of the central powers, with the resumption of naval operations in the spring. It is asserted in the same quarters that upon no consideration will British or French merchant ships submit to visit and search in accordance with customs of international law and that this adds to the certainty of battle between the two classes of enemy craft.

Nearly a Half Million. BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York, Jan. 30.—As unexpected as Sherman L. Whipple, counsel for the house "leak" investigating committee, brought the name of the German ambassador, Von Bernstorff, into his examination of the German official Franz Archibald S. White, the New York financier, as suddenly closed from the direct interrogation of Whittle that he had received advanced information from any German official regarding any of the recent peace movements.

Audience Expects Sensation.

Having examined the established close relationship between White and the ambassador yesterday and questioned him closely about the alleged efforts of Thos. W. Lawson to arrange a meeting with Von Bernstorff, Whipple today drew an expectant audience to the hearing. Then with rumors of sensation flying fast, he asked White less than half a dozen questions and turned him over to the committee for further examination.

All the speakers will stress the point that this plan will save the country $100,000,000 in light and power expenses during the summer months.

"The results expected," Marcus M. Marks, chairman of the New York daylight saving committee, told the convention, "are economy through reduction of light bills, saving eight hours of daylight and health building through working one hour longer in the cooler morning and one hour less in the hot summer afternoon. An extra daylight hour is thus added for recreation."

Robert Brunet told the convention that based on facts and figures he had collected, the inauguration of the daylight saving plan will conserve to the citizens of the United States about forty million dollars per annum.

"Did Lawson suggest to you?" asked Campbell. "That the market was too heavy and a suggestion of peace would start the market down and it would be a good time to get all your friends in a pool!"

"No sir," said White.

Denies Joining With Lawson. Putting the question in many different forms, Campbell tried to learn specifically what White and Lawson talked about at their various meetings in New York, at or prior to the time in the stock market. All White would say was that they talked in general terms about the war and its "economic effect."

You had advance information on the arrival of the U-53 didn't you?" asked Campbell.

"I did not."

"Did you think Lawson ought to be in an insane asylum or behind the bars—White?"

"I had no opinion on that. It is not within my jurisdiction," replied the witness, with a laugh.

Baruch's Profits $476,168.

Bernard Baruch, Wall street speculator, $50,000 contributor to the last democratic campaign fund, has been short seller in the stock market preceding the issuance of President Wilson's recent peace note, testified at the hearing today that his profits on the market between December 10 and January 26 were $476,168.

Every cent of this profit, he declared, was due to his foresight in interpreting speeches by von Bethmann Hollweg and David Lloyd George as meaning peace was coming.

No single transaction he made, he said, was influenced by advance information that the president was about to dispatch a peace note. He received no such information, he said, and added he had no secret source of information in Washington on which he based any of his stock operations.

As proof of his assertion that he was unaware that a note was forthcoming from the president, he was on the buying side of the market when news of it became public, he said.

Neither he nor any other man would have been caught in such a position, he declared, if he had foreseen the note.

Errors Disprove Leak.

Baruch also pointed out several other errors made on the market during the thirteen days' period of his protracted taking. On several occasions he was forced to sell stock at a loss, he testified, and finally on the day before the president's note was made before he overlooked the New York ticker "tip" which he had in his office, that note was expected.

"I covered it just now," he said, "and I am sorry I did." He had called up Secretary McAdoo, Baruch explained he had done so at the instance of Colonel House, President Wilson's adviser, to suggest to the secretary the name of a man to fill a vacancy in the board of the federal reserve bank of New York. He said that Colonel House called him on the telephone and said: "There's a vacancy in the federal reserve bank. I don't know anything about those fellows down there. Won't you suggest a name?"

Baruch said he did as Colonel House thought the name satisfactory, and asked him to suggest it to Secretary McAdoo, which Mr. Whipple said had come to the committee to the effect that Baruch sometime during October, November or December had dined with Count Von Bernstorff, Mr. White and Charles F. Sabine, New York banker, who early in October predicted a peace move, was denied by Baruch.

Raffles Off Women; Loses His License.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—Under orders from Mayor Thompson, Nick De Vito, a saloonkeeper, is without a license today because he was charged with conducting a raffle in which young women won the prizes. De Vito previously had been forbidden to offer turkeys or chickens.

"I covered it just now," he said, "and I am sorry I did." He had called up Secretary McAdoo, Baruch explained he had done so at the instance of Colonel House, President Wilson's adviser, to suggest to the secretary the name of a man to fill a vacancy in the board of the federal reserve bank of New York. General Ulrich Wille.

Fearing that Switzerland is yet in danger of invasion by the forces of the central powers, General Ulrich Wille, commander of the Swiss army, wishes to mobilize all the forces of the mountain republic. The federal council is said to regard such a measure as excessive and to have decided to mobilize only the Second and Fifth divisions of the army.

MAKE PLANS FOR FATHER AND SON BANQUET AT "Y"

First Annual Event Will be Held on Wednesday, February 7th.—Noted Speaker Here.

Janesville's first annual "father and son" banquet will be held at the Y. M. C. A. building on Wednesday evening, February 7th instead of on the fifth as was originally planned. The father and son banquet is an old idea and one that is incorporated in the program of practically every Y. M. C. A. organization in the country. Its purpose is manifold. Its value proven by hundreds of tests, and its success as a socializing force has been marked whenever and wherever attempted. It is designed especially to bring the father and the son into closer touch, to bring about between them a relationship of true friendliness, to establish between them a full understanding, a sympathy that will bring the boy to the fathers in times of need. It is an organized, scientifically guided, carefully administered attempt to break down the barriers of misunderstanding between the man and the boy, to overthrow the force of the disparity of age and acquire the father with the boy of the boy with his likes and dislikes, with his work and his play, with his friends and his helpers, with his joys and his problems. Furthermore, it shows the fathers first hand just what the "Y" is doing and can do with its boys; it points out where co-operation of the father of the entire family would be an aid to the boy; it links up for the man the aims and ends of the association with the other influences in the boy's life. And finally, it gives the father an opportunity of seeing his boys with other boys, not merely as men, but as the fathers of other boys. In the past, in every place where the father and son banquets has been a feature of the yearly work, its benefits have been felt wherever any result was expected. It has brought about such a relationship between father and son that an intimacy sprang up, that the boy gained confidence in his father as a friend, that he felt he could come to him with his problems; teen age problems that after all are for the father to solve in preference to any outside advice.

While it is not maintained by officials of the "Y" in charge of the coming banquet that these tremendously important and comprehensive effects will be felt at once, the dinner will point the way, it will provide the means, and in this talk and spirit it is hoped that we may find the inspiration that will assure the lasting character of its benefit.

As the feature talker of the evening the local "Y" has secured Hervey Smith McCowan of Grinnell, Iowa, to deliver his address on "The Trail a Boy Travels," a talk that has won international recognition as the most forceful and eloquently presented discussion on the subject of the boy and his problems of all the works on this subject. Mr. McCowan devotes his entire time in speaking at father and son banquets in all parts of the country, and is at this time touring through Wisconsin.

The dinner was originally planned to take place on Monday the fifth, but because of the general banquet of the Commercial club it was postponed until February seventh. Indications now point to an attendance of over three hundred. No man will be admitted without a boy, and similarly no boy without a man. All reservations should be made with C. W. Feagin at the Y. M. C. A. not later than Saturday evening. Attendance is not limited to "Y" members, but all fathers and sons of the city are invited.

EVANSVILLE LEOTAS WIN FROM ALBANY

Evansville, Jan. 30.—For the first time in record an Evansville city basketball team has succeeded in defeating Albany on the Albany floor. This miracle was performed last evening by the Evansville Leotas, who rode over to Albany early in the evening and played their city return game. The one-sided defeat ever handed Albany at that city was an Evansville basketball team administered by the Evansville school team some years ago. The final score in last evening's battle was 32 to 22 in favor of the locals.

The game opened with Albany scoring immediately. In fact they scored two field baskets in rapid succession. Finally, after a few minutes of tussling, McTomlin tossed a long one and settled the locals to counting. Jones followed the ring for two counters and Antes caged a neat one. "Mac" also dropped in a free throw, which placed the locals on the long end of a nine to six count, Albany having scored but three goals in all during the first half. The entire first half was rough, with everybody playing the game hard on the ball. At this style of game the locals were well able to take care of themselves and apparently came out on top. Their failure at the rougher tactics seemed to act on two of the Albany players the bottle was dumped out and the receptacle replaced.

From the office of Dr. M. A. Cunningham no drugs are known to have been taken. Only forty stamped envelopes are missing, which are believed to have gone to the office of Dr. Fred B. Welsh also. A black syringe was taken from there.

Dr. F. T. Richards, the dentist, across the hall from Dr. Cunningham, was unable to insert the key in his office door. Lighting a match in a dark hallway it was discovered that a skeleton key had been broken off with the aid of a long bladed knife after the casing had been whitewashed away to permit its insertion to force back the lock lever. The thief was unable to do this and so gained ingress through the transom. The floor was covered with curtain matches. It is thought that the burglar, for drugs, was fruitless in the endeavor as there was none missing.

Dr. W. H. Judd's office, on North Main street, was also visited within the past ten days.

The youth at the station at first denied that he was addicted to the drug habit. He stoutly maintained his innocence of having any part in the burglary. Today, however, as the stimulating effects of the narcotics are beginning to wear off and his system evidences a craving, he is gradually beginning to talk more.

He has admitted being a drug user at one time. He claims he is no longer an addict to the habit, and that he took a cure two months ago. This has been found to be true by the police.

The youth will be kept at the station until the police are satisfied as to whether or not he had a part in the robberies.

AMATEUR ROBBERS HAVE NO BRAINS

Evansville, Jan. 30.—Safe breakers were at work in this city sometime early yesterday morning or late on Sunday evening. At least the safe at the Myers lumber office is minus its knob and combination disks. These were taken off with ordinary carpenter tools and altogether gave the impression of an amateur piece of work. It is estimated that it must have taken at least two hours if not longer for the intruder to break the lock, if he was working for a low return for the vault containing but twenty cents. Furthermore, the safe is on the third floor and the combination was written out on a tag and was hanging on the knob of the safe. Local police authorities were informed today that a similar job was accomplished in Madison last Wednesday evening. The lock was broken there in exactly the same manner as here.

On Friday evening of this week the local Amateur Robbers Club is scheduled to meet the fast team from Whitehaven. The Whitewater press claims that their team is one of the best in southern Wisconsin, and winner. If such be the case a good game may be expected at Magee's Hall Friday evening, for the locals have developed new combinations and should put more aggressiveness into the team. The thief, in the combination of the Amateur Robbers Club and the Congregational church are meeting this evening with Rev. and Mrs. Miller.

The Tuesday Evening club meets this evening with Misses Kildow and Dutsher.

The Baptist Reading Circle are to meet this evening with Miss Ethel Frost.

On Friday evening of this week the local Amateur Robbers Club is scheduled to meet the fast team from Whitehaven.

Commissioners of the Commercial Club Directors CONSIDER ROUTINE MATTERS

Mayor John Mulva of Oshkosh, in a letter to Mayor James A. Fathers, notified the latter that a meeting of the corporate counsels of all municipalities in Wisconsin under the commission form of government would be held at Oshkosh on February 7. Mayor Mulva suggests that City Attorney Charles H. Lange be in attendance. The idea is to get together at which the commissioners of the various cities can be introduced to the state legislature with the purpose of government of cities enjoying the commission form.

Personally Mayor Fathers is not in accord with the movement. He has to see whereby any particular advantages would be obtained.

Locally the corporation conditions are governed by special charter laws together with ordinances drafted as necessary conditions have arisen.

"Yes" he answered. An hour passed and two coolies showed up with our baggage on their shoulders.

"Are the carriages coming?" we asked, as it had begun to rain, and we thought of Lake Shoji twelve miles away.

"Yes" he answered. After another half hour we wait the host started bowing us out. Just then a young Japanese home from Dartmouth College appeared. We explained our predicament. After a short talk with the hotel proprietor he said:

"He hasn't any carriages. He expects you to walk."

But we didn't; we rode the twelve miles in chairs.

The Moral.

"I had too much time on my hands when I was arrested, lady."

"That proves, my poor man, how laziness is at the root of all crime. But could you find nothing useful to do?"

"How came you to have so much time on your hands?"

"I was talking watches out of a jeweler's case when the cop nabbed me."

"Baltimore American."

CITY TAX OFFICE WILL BE OPEN WEDNESDAY NIGHT

George W. Muenchow, city treasurer, announced this morning that the tax department would be open from seven to eight o'clock, Wednesday evening for the convenience of taxpayers.

DRUG ADDICT HELD FOR FOUR ROBBERIES IN LOCAL OFFICES

Sweated at Police Station in Sopes of Clearing Numerous Burglarizing for Narcotics.

Dope field thievery is again rampant in the city. Doctors and dentists are using extra care in the secretive of narcotics. Police investigation of the robberies is under way. The son of a prominent family of the city is being held for the thefts.

The offices of three physicians and one dentist within the last ten days have been entered. Drugs in each instance have been the booty sought, the evidence shows. As far as is known the thief has been successful in but one instance, this time securing a large quantity of heroin.

NEW YORK TEACHERS MUST BE CITIZENS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

New York, Jan. 29.—President Wilson's opinion that "every person appointed as teacher in public schools should furnish proof of American citizenship as one of the required qualifications," is quoted by the board of superintendents of New York public schools in report to board of education. The president sent this report to inquiry made by the board and added:

"I had assumed that this was already the rule, and I am surprised that it has not been so."

The report recommended that all teachers hereafter appointed shall in writing declare their belief in the principles of the constitution of the United States and intention to promote the good order and happiness of the United States. It is said between 500 and 800 public school teachers in New York at present are not American citizens.

WEATHER FORECAST.

Partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday; probably snow south portion Wednesday; not much change in temperature.

FULLY PROTECTED.

Speaker Whittet of the Wisconsin legislature has voted the sentiment that there will be no legislation introduced through the assembly and that every member will have ample opportunity to thoroughly investigate each bill before it is presented for final vote. Men who have in mind previous legislative sessions when the measures of the administration were passed through on strictly factional lines, will appreciate the statement of Speaker Whittet and understand what he means. It is a sign of the times and one which speaks well for the future of the state. They will not be partly factional measures, but laws for the benefit of the whole state and not for further the political ambition of any individual.

TRUE PROSPERITY.

One of the chief indications of any community is the quality of the retail establishments that exist in its midst. It is indicative of the prosperity of the territory immediately surrounding Janesville to note the prosperous condition of the Janesville establishments. The stock of goods carried, the volume of trade done, the business transacted, the bank accounts deposited, the numbers that come from distances to make their purchases here show that Janesville is one of the most prosperous of the smaller cities in the state. It is essential to have one or more large factories employing hundreds of laborers to be a successful community. Our retail stores are on a par with any in the state, above the average of many communities where the population is much larger. Hard times, closing down of factories for lack of business, do not affect Janesville and the business continues unabated the year through. Janesville has much to be proud of and thankful for.

PEACE WITHOUT VICTORY?

In an attempt to extol the President's emanation that a durable peace must be a peace without victory," the New York World presents this illuminating example to its readers:

"And what is a peace without victory?" The classical example of modern times is furnished by the American Civil War. The North completely crushed the military power of the southern confederacy. It made an end to slavery and secession, but it imposed no conquerors' terms upon the vanquished."

The American public is now being treated to so much twaddle, both in and out of official circles, that we might well ask ourselves whether there is not some unscrupulousness in the public reason," says the Wall Street Journal.

"If the Civil war did not end like other decisive wars of the past, then we must learn history over again. The allies would ask for no more decisive settlement than the unconditional surrender at Appomattox. And as regards the conditions imposed upon the vanquished, let the world ask its southern friends what they think of the carpet baggers and the reconstruction period.

"Our President's message is now being construed as a peace without victory as a fitting pendant to 'too proud to fight.' He endorses, not as an individual, but as the president of the United States, the peace of victory claimed in the German notes."

POLICE GRAFT.

Every once in a while from some of the big cities, there comes a tale of alleged police graft. Chicago is the latest to call for a show-down, the state's attorney claiming that one man has put $25,000 in his pocket from illegal dealings with law-breakers. Warrants for others are also issued. It is a constant problem also in smaller cities in appointing police officers to find men who shall be immune to crooked work.

Formerly in appointing policemen, the principal question was as to their athletic ability. They were supposed to be big, muscular fellows who could handle the most riotous drunk or capture the most fleet-footed runaway. Police work is still a rough and tumble proposition. These physical qualifications are still quite necessary, but certain moral qualifications are even more essential today. The policeman's sense of right and wrong needs to be quite as vigorous as his arms and legs.

The police forces are as honest as they usually are, a testimony to the good side of human nature. It shows that after all there is a lot of honor left in the world. A great many men who seem very ordinary types of fellows really show no little heroism in the way they set aside these temptations to easy money.

But no doubt there are a lot of policemen who stand up very straight and make a very impressive appearance on duty, but who are really in the pay of the underworld. Police graft strikes at the very foundation of our civic life. It is useless to pass laws, futile to conduct elections and schools, if crime can flourish unchecked by the simple expedient of paying policemen to be conveniently neutral.

In appointing policemen, the most careful attention needs to be given to a man's moral record. If he cannot show a clean life, square in all business dealings, he has no fitness for police work.

FARM INSTITUTES.

One of the features of country life nowadays is attending the farmers' institutes. At many a cross roads school house one finds a yard full of teams and motors, while gray-bearded farmers on the benches inside are listening while some smooth-faced youth hair the axes give the result of agricultural experiment.

Agriculture is the profession of the future, and it attracts young men.

The farm institute speaker of today often seems ridiculously young while his instructors are men old enough to be his father. So commonly he is not merely a school professor, but an experimenter who has personally done the things he advises his hearers to do.

Unless he has had this actual field experience it is not much use to send him out. The farmers will detect the dust of the class room, and the whole idea of scientific farming will be discredited.

Farming is not a laboratory affair in which certain chemicals can be depended on to do certain things at certain times. The ploughed field is a vast work room, where the whims of soil and sun and moisture and seed are infinite and alike in no two places. No text book will fit every place alike.

The school farmer must always allow a certain amount of weight to the local opinion and experience. He should return the wiser from every excursion into the rural districts, feeling that he has learned something from the farmers as well as from them.

In the main the farm institute ideas are good gospel for the man with the farm. Into an afternoon's talk is concentrated the results of experience and experiment for years. A professional or business man who was getting so much in so short a time would preserve the results in his note book. The farmers might well do likewise.

The people are looking forward to government ownership of railroads, when influential politicians will secure them marble structures with terrace floors for the flag stations where trains stop once a day.

Believing that they should read newspapers and keep in touch with the progress of the world, many people settle down and devour three columns on Harry Thaw's escapade.

The country is wondering how congress can do the rest of its work in six weeks, and the congressmen are wondering how they can keep from doing it for that length of time.

That explosion at the New Jersey munition plant was perhaps another of those purely accidental affairs that come off on schedule time as planned.

Now that women are wearing overalls, will they take up smoking, the physical difficulties that have prevented them from lighting a match being removed?

When a man talks about the extravagance of automobiles, it is a sign that he is struggling against a temptation that will overcome him about May 1st.

Perhaps the enthusiasm manifested by the children in the "Save Paper" campaign must be stimulated by the shortage of good spitball material.

No interest in the Daylight Saving movement is as yet manifested by the young people who will sit out on study porches next summer.

There is a widespread feeling that all bills should be settled up during the month of January, 1918.

OLD CASPER

Perhaps you've heard, perhaps you've not,
Old Casper Razz, so old a guy
That every winter it was thought
He'd surely die.

Till came a winter when it seemed
Old Casper now would surely go.
That he could live was hardly
Dreamed, he was so low.

And so the village seer was sought.
Who every woe or wind foretold,
And he was asked just what he Thought.
"He's mighty old!"

The seer, he thought, then says as how,
Yes, he would live, old Casper
Razz
Why did he think he would? "Wa-away now.
He always has!"

And though, indeed, the tale is old,
Yet there is much truth to cheer;
Much wisdom doth he then unfold,
That village seer.

The tale is good to know and you
Will find it oft a balm, a salve,
Though cares are great we'll live 'em
Through—
We always have.

Dubs
There are a number of good ways of losing all your individuality beside getting married. Being a first class Dub is a fine art. More people would be Dubs if they knew howse altho it's hard to understand why some people could be. The Superdub wears a ring around his head where his hat fits and stands on the corner jingling his key-ring. His favorite hobby is picking his teeth. He wears sleeve bands and carries a pocket mirror. Ordinarily he wears an ordinary hat. He is extraordinarily ordinary. Like a supermodel he is that looks elegant it's difficult to be a Superdub. Most of us must be content with being just ordinary Dubs.

Begging Your Pardon
Oh, reader, do not sneer and curse
If I should seem to you

To waste your time and what is

SAFE FARMINGCROP ROTATION LESSENS RISK OF FAILURE

By PROF. P. G. HOLDEN.

ROTATION of crops lessens the risk of failure. It means diversification. It increases the source of income. No man should expect to make a profit from farming by growing one crop and devoting two-thirds of his time to doing it. Farming is a business and requires all our energies intelligently directed. Rotation distributes the work through the entire year. It calls for more efficient farm help, because it means steady employment.

The problem of securing efficient farm help is becoming more serious every year. In the great wheat-growing regions, the harvest and threshing seasons demand an army of harvest hands. Wheat is ripe—the work must be done rapidly or the crop is lost. Thousands of acres of wheat must be taken care of in a short time. The whole is a great scene of activity. Men work late and early and sleep in the fields.

Does Not Equalize Labor.

There is great activity while the crop is being removed from the land and threshed—but there is little activity after the transitory labor is performed and the army of harvest hands pack their blankets and leave for other parts. It is not often that specialized farming pays. It is all right for a time, especially in pioneer regions, but it must be changed. There is but one permanent system—the diversification of crops. Poverty will be the future of owners of farms who grow a single crop and haul it to market.

Crop rotation is the alternate growing of three general classes of farm crops—namely, grain crops, grass or legume crops, and cultivated crops. The rotation must be arranged to provide the most abundant yields of grains, pasture and forage needed on the farm at the least expense of labor and fertility.

Rotation systems must be adapted to each farm or class of farms. The essentials of a good rotation are, that the yields per acre be maintained or increased; that humus be kept in the soil; that the land be kept in good physical condition, and reasonably free from weeds and insects. Legume crops must be grown and barnyard manure applied to keep up the supply of vegetable matter. Cultivated crops and good tillage are necessary to keep out weeds, and help put the soil in good condition. These things are naturally brought about by rotation of crops.

How to Plan Rotation.

In planning a system of rotation, observe the following things:

Rotate legume crops with grain crops.

Plan to grow crops that will give the largest net profit per acre.

Feed on the farm as large a portion as possible of the crops grown and return the manure to the fields.

Raise the kind of live stock which will bring the largest profit.

This is diversified farming, and the man who follows it cannot fail under normal conditions.

Rotation of crops prevents weeds, insects and plant diseases. Wherever these are found on the farm, profits are reduced and failure will result. The corn root worm, corn root louse, chinook bug, Hessian fly, rust and smut and many other plant diseases and insect enemies to crops are the results of growing the same crop from year to year without rotation. These pests multiply to such an extent that ultimately it becomes impossible to secure profitable returns from the land.

The rotation of crops means live stock on the farm. It means a balanced ration, an even distribution of farm work, greater and more continuous income, better soil, better and happier homes, and more efficient people.

LOWER HAULING COSTS.

Improvement of roads in eight selected counties in different sections of the United States resulted, in the aggregate, in a total gross annual saving in hauling costs of $627,400, according to recent economic studies made by the office of public roads and rural engineering of the department. The cost of haulage for the group of counties is lower since the roads were improved. It was found, even when charges are made in the comparative computations for interest on bonds and annual maintenance costs.

AUTOS AND COUNTY ROADS.

Cities Should Share in Cost of Maintaining and Constructing Highways.

A conspicuous example of what happens to county roads when a city, the center of heavy automobile traffic, fails to contribute toward the building and maintenance of county roads is found in Spotsylvania County, Va., according to specialists in road economics of the United States department of agriculture.

The country districts of Spotsylvania County some years ago issued $170,000 of 4½ and 5 per cent bonds to improve their county roads. Under the Virginia law the cities of the state are not taxed for county purposes, although they may aid in the improvement of roads for a distance of ten miles from the city limits if the city council so elects. The city of Fredericksburg, in Spotsylvania County, however, contributed no part to the financial burden of maintaining the county roads. The heavy automobile traffic emanating from that point has proved to be a very destructive element to the county road system, and it was found that rapid de-

LETTERS THAT SKIP.

Why do women write letters that skip and then come back? Why should letters "totrot?" If a woman is in the middle of a sentence about strawberry jam at the bottom of page one, you usually find her in the middle of a sentence about trimming a hat on page two. The strawberry jam sentence is finished on page four or page nine or somewhere, depending upon the woman's system. All there is to do is to hunt around through the letter, turning it sideways and upside down until you find something that looks like the last half of a strawberry jam sentence.

At the next meeting of the Hague Conference, we suggest that a universal system of writing letters be agreed upon, and that it be made a violation of international law to write letters that jump.

At present, why can't we all explain our systems on the first pages of our letters? We can say: "This is the way I will write this letter. First, I will fill page one. Then I will skip to page five, and return to pages two and three, which I shall write vertically instead of horizontally, thence to page six and back to page four, and so on."

FOOTBALL TRAINING PRAISED BY HESTON

[By ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 30.—The things I learned on the football field are the ones that fitted me for life. The fact that I went to college for two reasons—to soak up knowledge and to learn football—was the greatest point in my preparation for life.

That's the way Willie Heston, former quarterback at Michigan university, and twice selected on the mythical all-American eleven, has the thing sized up. Willie is a police court justice now in Detroit, and he isn't known as Willie any more. He's Police Justice William M. Heston and he puts it over.

One of the ambitions of Judge Heston's life was to rid himself of the name "Willie." In school, and afterwards he did his best to shake it out of his mind. Finally he got himself elected Judge and they had to quit calling him "Willie."

Heston declared that if every youth were given the chance he had to learn football—to get the spirit of fair competition in sports drilled into his system—there would be little need for police courts.

"I know what it has taught me," he said. "I believe it would do as much for any other man."

When a poor, weak, spineless youth comes before me for one crime or another the wish that he could have seen service under Yost or Keene Fitzpatrick hits me right between the eyes. If he could have had that training he wouldn't be living the wrong kind of life.

"Probation and parole are two things that have helped me in my gridiron training. I know that whenever we were beaten we always were cheered on. We thought that next year we would have another chance. I don't believe there's a man alive, who, if given the opportunity to put everything behind him, would not glory in the thought of another chance. That's what the parole is for, and I'm firm believer in it."

"Studying football in colleges may be the subject of a good many jokes, but it builds strength and character and strength of body. With these assets a man can be a good student. When he gets out into the world the traits football has put there will make a useful, honorable citizen of him."

An amateur athlete who recently was taking place in the county roads, and insufficient funds existed with which to meet the situation. The county authorities accordingly established tollgates on the principal roads, and sufficient revenue thus was derived not only to maintain the roads, but actually to extend their construction a short distance. This reversal to a system long since abolished by most countries was partially due at least to the fact that the city in this country had contributed nothing to the upkeep of the roads which residents of that city use extensively for automobiles.

The writers of the report suggest in view of the very rapid development of motor vehicles in the past decade and the prospects of much more widespread use of this means of transportation in the future, the desirability of making provisions so that the cities may aid in the construction and maintenance of roads in the surrounding territory.

POOR SURVEYS COSTLY.

Preliminary Work on Roads Should Be Conducted With Great Care.

Surveys for roads are often criticised as an unnecessary expense, mainly useful in giving temporary jobs to surveying parties. It seems to many people a very easy matter to stake out a proposed road so that the grades will not be too heavy and the curves too sharp, says the American Highway association.

The country districts of Spotsylvania County some years ago issued $170,000 of 4½ and 5 per cent bonds to improve their county roads. Under the Virginia law the cities of the state are not taxed for county purposes, although they may aid in the improvement of roads for a distance of ten miles from the city limits if the city council so elects.

If the strike goes through one thing that the ballplayers probably will not have to worry about will be the income tax.

Now that the fraternity has decided to admit Class C players, some of the Athletics can join.

The Fort Worth and Shreveport clubs of the Texas league have made another trade. This time Fort Worth trades Outfielder Ralph McLauren for Pitcher Horace Leveen. McLauren player got along well with his old team, both promise to regain the well-known old-time form in new uniforms.

MILTON JUNCTION.

A rumor from out Portland way is that Fielder Jones is inclined to give the veteran Billy Sullivan a job as coach of the Brown young pitchers. Sullivan, however, had announced that he was done with baseball and intended to remain on his Oregon ranch, so there may be nothing in the story.

George Stovall has decided to play first base as a regular thing for the Verners team, of which he'll be the manager, and therefore Gus Gleichenmann is on the market. It is doubtful if he will be wailed out of the Pacific Coast league. The Los Angeles club is said to be particularly anxious from his idea as derived from the plans and specifications. Final surveys of excavation and embankment at times show as great discrepancy as 25 per cent, although no great departure has been made from the plans, a result scarcely excusable.

The preliminary survey should be made with the utmost care, and the plans and specifications drawn therefrom should be the subject of the most careful thought and study and when finally adopted should not be lightly changed. The location of the material to be used should be definitely and exactly stated, and the responsibility for these locations and quality of material should rest with the state. Should these sources of supply be exhausted or deteriorate in quality it should be the state's burden to bear the loss and not the contractor's.

Doc White, having bought into Dallas, it looks like the only club for Des Moines is to secure Ed Walsh.

Now Ed is willing. Incidentally the story of Walsh being unconditionally released by Charley Comiskey was not exactly true. Big Ed is privileged to do whatever he chooses in baseball, but he remains on Commy's payroll still.

Al Demaree, traded by the Phillies to the Cubs because he wants to pitch in his home town, has made a bad start if he expects to get in good with the Chicago fans. He has been one of the most active strike agitators and from all accounts Chicago fans have little patience with the strike talk Al is spitting so blatantly.

Some ball players have come out boldly with the statement that they will stand by the fraternity and fight to a finish, but they neglect to mention whose finish.

The Pittsburgh Shoe league is planning a big celebration for Hans Wagner on his birthday, February 24. It will be the first "public appearance" of Wagner since his marriage and the occasion is to be made of more than ordinary interest, with some gift for the veteran player that he will appreciate.

There are so many conflicting statements regarding the cost of road work that the desirability of a comprehensive method of highway accounting is evident in order that taxpayers may not be misled concerning the total expense of such work, says the American Highway. The Iowa state highway commission has had considerable difficulty in finding out what the counties in that state have been spending, because of this failure to have a complete system of accounts.

One high county reported collecting $16,000 for road work, but after investigation the commission found $32,500 had been collected. An investigation of the accounts of another wealthy county reporting $3,200 collected revealed a total collection of $19,600. The discrepancies were not due to an intention to hide the amount of the funds, but merely to lack of good accounting.

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson

Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I was going with a young man several years older than myself. He was the first steady companion I ever had, and he can be happy without you, his friend. You can go with both the boys for while, and perhaps you can influence them to drop their ill-feeling and be friends again.

You made a mistake in asking the boy to choose between you and the other girl, but don't let it make you unhappy. Now that you have had that experience you are wiser, and will be more generous another time.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a child who tears pages out of his story books. I have scolded him and whipped him, but it doesn't seem to do any good. I can't make him realize that books are not made to be destroyed. He is nineteen months old and likes to look at picture books. What shall I do?

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a boy friend who seems to think that he has a claim on me but he has not. He phones me every night and would like to come over every night if I would let him. When I have other company, he phones and talks and talks even when he knows I am entertaining someone. I don't want to hurt his feelings, but I would like to make him understand that he wasn't very interesting. Another boy wanted to come and showing him pictures, but not allowing him to touch the book unless it is as a reward for good behavior.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

THE LIFE OF A WORM.
Now that Grandma concedes she knows nothing about worms, and dishwives no longer insist that mentalitis, appendicitis, pneumonia, epilepsy, and mumps are really nothing but worms, it may be worth while to investigate the cycle of a worm's existence. I mean the common round worm, popularly called "carries," "lumbriocides," which makes an alimentary canal of a considerable share of childhood and adults, whether they know it or not.

The eggs of the round worm are visible only under the microscope. They are passed from the intestine with the alvine discharges, and thus they pollute the earth. Children perhaps pick up the eggs more frequently than adults, because children have dirtier hands and are less particular about putting their fingers in their mouths when playing. But not only via the earth and drinking water are the eggs of worms conveyed to the stomach; children directly reinfect themselves and playmates by uncleanly habits. Under the finger nails of a child with worms the eggs may not easily be found.

Cleanliness, therefore, is the prevention of worms. All children were made to wash their hands and face very carefully before eating dinner, candy or anything else, there would be less occasion for Grandma and the others to join in when the doctor was trying to make a diagnosis. You can't blame her and her cronies are right about the "worms" once in a hundred times, as long as this fine record, possibly the doctor just naturally can't throttle Grandma.

In a few days after they are swallowed the eggs hatch out. The adult worms are four or more inches long, as thick as a goosequill, paler in color than earth worms.

WHAT SHE'D DO IF . . .
A neighbor of mine started us the other evening by saying in her husband's presence, "I was planning it all out last night what I should do if Philip should die. I'd take the children out in the country to mother's. You know, she has quite a large place, and I'd take his life insurance and fix the place up and make a little inn out of it. I'd have Junior (her oldest boy) have charge of the garden. I suppose I'd have to have a man to help him, he's only fifteen."

He Didn't Like Being Disposed of That Way.

"Well, I don't like that," broke in her husband. "So you're going to dispose of me right off? It didn't sound attractive to me at all but I did think it was in the future, not right now." "The future?" she picked him up. "I hope it isn't at all. But I was just thinking what I would do if—" "Did you like to think of things like that?" he broke in again, beginning to feel ruffled in earnest.

"Of course I don't. I can't bear to think of them, but I was just planning it."

"Why think of it at all? Wouldn't you have time enough to plan if it did happen?"

Trying to Make a Man Understand.—"I suppose," she conceded, "but with the futile perseverance of a woman trying to 'make' clear the psychology of an essentially feminine act to a very masculine man, 'I just like to have an idea of what I could do.'"

At which he looked as baffled as he probably felt.

I called her plans for a future without her husband essentially feminine.

I wonder if I was right. It may be an isolated case, but somehow I don't think it is.

I have a notion that it is a trick women the world over have—of planning what they would do without their husbands.

Protective Mother Instinct.

The husband in this case really felt a little hurt, thought it showed some lack of heart on his wife's part, but I think it is just the stirring of some strange protective instinct; the

"My face broke out with red, sore looking pimples. The pimples festered and irritated very much and mostly always came to a head so that my face was disfigured very much for the time being. Later on they became itchy and burned a lot. This lasted about two or three months."

"One day I got a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I applied them in the evening and slept better for they cooled my face, so I bought more and in three weeks my face became clear, and I was healed. (Signed) Arthur Briesemeister, 3037 West 19th Street, Chicago, Ill., Sept. 25, 1916."

same that teaches the mother bird to be both mother and father when the father is away.

As for hard-heartedness—there wasn't a smidgen of that, because when she talks about her husband's death she doesn't any more take in the thought of it, sense it, than if such a thing were impossible.

We're none of us when we speak of such things....which is a blessed dispensation of Providence. For how else could we live on the edge of the precipice and be happy?

Tom Pitied Any Man Who Hasn't a Wife Like Marjory.

Tom, hurrying into the house. "That young Jaynes going up the street. I asked him to come in, but he declined. See him?"

"Yes, he walks with a sort of loafing swagger."

Marjory had raced to the window in time to see the retreating figure of the young man. "She expresses faultlessly," she continued as he disappeared from view.

"Naturally, with all that money at his back. A man could afford to dress well."

"What is he like?" she asked.

"Worse than Augusta, the sister?"

"You can grind it or not, and add two tablespoons butter if you like. If done right it is a good coffee substitute."

PINEAPPLE-CABBAGE SALAD.

Sliced canned pineapple in small wedge-shaped pieces. Chop nuts, not too fine. Mix in bowl and moisten well with one-half French dressing (olive oil, vinegar, paprika and salt) and one-half mayonnaise dressing, stirring all together. A few dried cherries may be added. Serve one cup-shaped head lettuce.

CINNAMON APPLE SALAD.

Parcels carefully medium sized apples, remove core carefully. Drop these apples in simmering water which has been dyed and flavored with red drop candy of the old-fashioned variety. Cook the apples until tender but not soft. Set aside to cool and cut centers with a sharp knife.

Celeri, pineapple or any preferred fruit. For the apples with a fruit salad dressing. Serve on leafy lettuce, both to taste and sight. The water should be colored sufficiently to make the apples a bright red.

Baked Hush With Tomato Sauce (serves four people)—Cut four boiled potatoes into small pieces, mix with two small onions and one green pepper, small pieces of garlic, four pepper and three drops tabasco sauce. Add one egg and beat well. Mix spoonful into muffin tins and bake in a hot oven. Serve with tomato sauce. Tomato Salad—Cook one can tomatoes, chop stalk celery, sprig of parsley, small onion, for twenty minutes, strain and put in double boiler. Cream two tablespoons lard and two tablespoons flour together; add to onion and celery, etc. Season to taste and pour over hash after placed on plate. This recipe is excellent for leftovers, and is delicious.

Hunter Breakfast (serves four persons)—One slice ham, two slices bacon, one green pepper, one onion, small piece of garlic, four medium-sized boiled potatoes. Dice ham and bacon; put in skillet and fry. Dice potatoes and add to meat. Cook one onion and add to meat. Cook one egg and add to meat and potatoes; let simmer a few minutes. Sausage.

Cabbage Rolls (Hungarian style)—Take a cabbage that has nice leaves; separate leaves from cabbage and put in hot water to wilt. Take one and a half cups cooked rice and a pound ground pork or beef, mix with rice, add a teaspoon onion salt and a little paprika. Roll mixture in the wilted cabbage leaves and place rolls closely in a steamer; cover with water, add a little lemon juice or vinegar to the water and boil two hours. This amount will serve six people.

Corn Purée—One-half cup yellow corn meal, one cup wheat flour, one-half teaspoon salt, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half cup milk, butter size of walnut, one meal, four baking powder, one-half cup sugar, one egg, one and one-half cups flour, one cup black coffee, two eggs, half cup cocoa, spices if desired (one teaspoon or each), two teaspoons baking soda dissolved in two tablespoons water and one-half teaspoon baking powder. Mix powder in above and pastry flour. Mix well and bake in moderate oven. This quantity will make two large loaves.

Rice Pudding (serves five people)—This is very good and economical.

Half cup rice, three tablespoons sugar, pinch of salt, one pint milk, one pint water, lump of butter, a little cinnamon, raisins may be added if desired. Bake very slowly three or four hours. The slower it is baked the better it is.

One can use all milk, but it is cheaper and just as good to use half water.

Shakespearian.

It may be that I'm trashy, and I don't know where I am at, and haven't got the stuff I should shock up beneath my hat; it may be that my dope is wrong, and that I'm to the bad, because I know that Shakespeare with all high-brows is some fad.

They boost him till the sky must do a quick one or get hit, we know he's good, we know he's great, and should not bite his mit; we've tried to learn to like him; we've tried to read his stuff with joy, we try to get a sailing, but with us it's ship ahoy. We seem to sight an island, or some rocks or bergs of ice, we're dodging here and there and you, with plans like Bobbie's mice; we think we'll do and then we don't, we think we'll read along, until the dope goes home with us, like some Bill Bailey song. But it doesn't seem to work at all, it can't get under right, so we've made up our mind to quit, to drop the Shakespeare fight, and get to stuff that pleases us as down the lane we stroll, that well enjoy, will cheer us up—with sunshine all around our soul.

THE WHATCHAMA COLUMN.

Hooks are instruments of torture scattered around in rivers and dresses to make life a misery for married men and other poor fish.

Hooks are all right if you know how to handle them. Some hooks are gentle, unobtrusive, mild mannered affairs that sit up on the wall and curl their noses and wrinkle their arms. You can hang almost anything on them.

Other hooks are quarrelsome, belligerent things that ride around on the heads of bulls and pygmy goats, looking for trouble.

HOW TO JUDGE A WOMAN
BY HER HAIR.

There is real common sense in just noticing whether the hair is well kept to judge of a woman's neatness or good taste. If you are one of the few who try to make the most of your hair, remember that it is not advisable to wash the hair with any cleanser made for all purposes, but always use some good preparation made especially for shampooing. You can enjoy the very best by getting some camphor from your druggist, dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. This makes a full cup of shampoo liquid enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. Dandruff, excess oil, and dries are dissolved and entirely disappear. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its texture and softness will also delight you, while the stimulated scalp gains the health which insures hair growth. Grandmother, the Pioneer Physician.

In the good old pioneer days of this country, when drug stores were few, grandmother's root and herb remedies were what were always depended upon to bring relief for family ailments, and some of grandmother's root and herb remedies are now found upon the shelves of the modern drug store, and are among the best and most widely used prepared medicines.

Such is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a botanic remedy originally prepared by Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., over forty years ago, and which has brought health and happiness to more women in America than any other medicine.

Prepare This for a Bad Cough—It's Fine

Cheaply and Easily Made, but Does the Work Quickly.

The finest cough syrup that money can buy—costing only about one-fifth as much as ready-made preparations—can easily be made at home. The way it takes hold and conquers distressing coughs, throat and chest colds will really make you enthusiastic about it.

Any druggist will supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth). Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Shake thoroughly and it is ready for use. The total cost is about 54 cents and gives you a full pint—a family supply of a most effective, pleasant tasting remedy. It keeps perfectly.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed or swollen throat membranes, and gradually but surely removes the tickle and soreness which will disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic cough, whooping cough or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with quinine and is known the world over for its prompt healing effect on the throat and lungs.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

CHAPTER XV.

Strategy.

One week went to repairs. To a man of action such a week is longer than ten years of service. But chained to a bed in the Sleepy Cat hospital, De Spain had no escape from one week of thinking, and for that week he thought about Nan Morgan. And the impulse that moved him the first moment he could get out of bed and into a saddle was to spur his way hard and fast to her; to knock her, against a score of burly cousins, his own; and never to release her from his sudden arms again.

With De Spain to think was to do; at least to do something, but not without further careful thinking, and not without anticipating every chance of failure. And his manner was to cast up all difficulties and obstacles in a situation, brush them aside, and have his will if the heavens fell; and he now set himself, while doing his routine work every day, to do one particular thing—to see, talk to plead with, struggle with the woman, or girl, rather—child, even, to his thoughts, so fragile she was—this girl who had given him back his life against her own maddening relatives.

His friends saw that something was absorbing him in an unusual, even an extraordinary way, yet none could arrive at a certain conclusion as to what it was. The one man in the country who could have surmised the situation between the two—the barn boss, McAlpin—if he entertained suspicions, was far too pawky to share them with anyone.

When two weeks had passed without De Spain's having seen Nan or having heard of her being seen, the conclusion urged itself on him that she was either ill or in trouble—perhaps in trouble for helping him; a moment later he was laying plans to get into the gap to find out.

Nothing in the way of a venture could be more foolhardy—this he admitted to himself—nothing, he consoled himself by reflecting, but something stronger than danger could justify it. Of all the matley Morgan following within the mountain fastness he could count on but one man to help him in the slightest degree—this was the derrick, Bull Page. There was no choice but to use him, and he was easily enlisted for the Calabasas affair had made a heroic figure of De Spain in the barrooms. De Spain, accordingly, lay in wait for the old man and intercepted him one day on the road to Sleepy Cat, walking the twenty miles patiently for his whisky.

"You must be the only man to help me," said De Spain, "but I can't borrow or steal a horse to ride," remarked De Spain, stopping him near the river bridge.

Page pushed back the broken brim of his hat and looked up. "You wouldn't believe it," he said, imparting a cheery confidence, "but ten years ago I had horses to lend to every man 'twixt here and Thief river." He nodded toward Sleepy Cat with a wicked smile, and by a dramatic rebuke the broken heart-brother fell with the words: "They've got 'em all."

"Your fault, Bull."

"Say!" Up went the broken brim, and the whitened face lighted with a shaking smile. "You turned some trick on that Calabasas crew—some fight," Bull said.

"Bull, is old Duke Morgan a Repub-

"I hear she's gone down to Thief River, teaching school."

"Came by Duke's less'n three hours ago. Seen her in the kitchen makin' bread."

"They're looking for a schoolteacher down there, anyway. Much sickness in the gap lately, Bull?"

"Only sickness I knowed lately is what you're responsible for y'self," repeated De Spain, "but I'm afraid of the sound of her voice, and afraid of his own. 'To see you,' he said, collecting himself. 'Come over to the pine tree.'

Under its heavy branches, where the darkness was most intense, he told her why he had come—because he could not see her anywhere outside.

"There is nothing to see about you,"

she responded, still calm. "I helped you because you were wounded. I was glad to see you get away without fighting—I hate bloodshed."

"But put yourself in my place a little, won't you? After what you did for me, isn't it natural I should want to be sure you are well and not in any trouble on my account?"

"It may be natural, but it isn't necessary. I am in no trouble. No one here knows I even know you."

"Excuse me for coming, then. I couldn't rest. Nan, without knowing something, I was here last night."

"I know you were."

"He started. "You made no sign."

"Why should I? I suspected it was you. When you came again tonight I knew I should have to speak to you at least, to ask you not to come again."

"But you will be in and out of town sometimes, won't you, Nan?"

"I know, it will not be to talk with."

The words were spoken deliberately. De Spain was silent for a moment. "Not even to speak to me?" he asked.

"You must know the position I am in," she answered. "And what a position you place me in if I am seen to speak to you. This is my home. You are the enemy of my people."

"Not because I want to be."

"But you can't expect them not to resent any acquaintance on my part with you."

He paused before continuing. "Do you count Gile Morgan as one of your people?" he asked evenly.

"I suppose I must."

"Don't you think you ought to count all of your friends, your well-wishers, those who would defend you with their lives, among your people?" She made no answer. "Aren't they the kind of people?" he persisted, "you need when you are in trouble?"

"You needn't remind me I should be grateful to you."

"Nan!" he exclaimed.

"For I am," she continued, unmoved.

"But—"

"It's a shame to accuse me in that way."

"You were thinking when you spoke of what happened with Gile on Music mountain."

"I wish to God you and I were on Music mountain again! I never lived or did anything worth living for, till you came to me that day on Music

"Take it from old Bull Page, he's a world's wonder of a sucker, but he knows his friends."

"But remember this—you don't know me. If anybody knows you for a friend of mine, you are no good to me. See?"

Bull was beyond expressing his comprehension in words alone. He winked, nodded, and sevved his face into a thousand wrinkles. De Spain, wheeling, rode away, the old man blinking first after him, and then at the money in his hand. He didn't profess to understand everything in the high country, but he could still distinguish the principal figures at the end of a bank-note.

PETEY DUNK—PETEY'S LIFE IS JUST ONE EXPENSE AFTER ANOTHER.

SPORTS

WISCONSIN'S HOPES FOR CHAMPIONSHIP HAVE GROWN DIM

Especially in the present. Madison, Wis., Jan. 30.—Wisconsin's hopes of winning a conference championship this season are very small at the present time although the Badgers still have a very slim chance of winning the honors. The defeat at the hands of Chicago last week and the defeat of Northwestern at the hands of Minnesota gave the lead to the Gophers, with no one yet near. If the Badgers had won from Chicago they would have had a chance to overcome the lead of the Gophers. As it stands now Coach Cook's men have three victories and no defeats to their credit. Purdue is the only five within striking distance of the leaders with three victories and one defeat. Purdue has a very small chance of upsetting Minnesota, however.

De Meyow has not given up his hopes of repeating his winning of last year and will go into the remainder of the games with the idea of gaining the honors. Minnesota must meet Wisconsin and Illinois on their home grounds and there is little doubt that they will lose one or both of the contests. Illinois was in a crippled condition when they lost to the Badgers last week while Wisconsin played miserably against Minnesota.

Wisconsin will present a changed face when they open the second semester contests. "Bill" Chandler, all-conference center of last year, will be a star playing the position which he has not graduated. His addition will mean much to the Badgers although the loss of Lewis will be felt considerably. Olsen and Carlson will be at the guards again and Alvers and McIntosh at the other forwards from Chandler. Remming will be at center providing his ankles are held by him.

At the present time Coach Meany's men are devoting their time to examinations. Some of the men are on the reserve edge as far as studies are concerned so they are taking plenty of time from basketball to keep on the right side of the faculty. If any of the regulars are lost, we mean much to the Badger's chances. According to the present date none of the men will be lost by the faculty.

The first game of the second semester will be with Northwestern at Madison on February 12. The Badgers have high hopes of winning this contest as Northwestern have captured but one game this year that began with them following the lead of Ohio State at Madison on Feb. 17. On the 24th the Badgers will make the trip to Urbana to meet Illinois.

PERHAPS FRANK L. SMITH OF THIS CITY CAN SETTLE THIS PERVERSE QUESTION

(By Associated Press)

Cincinnati, Jan. 30.—During a recent argument between baseball fans here the question arose as to the speediest pitcher. The name of Tony Maitane was connected with that of Alvin Bush and Walter Johnson. John B. Connally, one of the oldest men in this city declared that Tony Maitane was the speediest pitchers the game ever developed.

Unquestionably the old timers say, Maitane had great speed in his early years. In his best moments, however, no pitcher's time of Bush's time has been equaled. Maitane pitched a speedier ball than their idol.

EDDIE COLLINS KNOCKS PLAYERS' STRIKE PLANS.

(By Associated Press)

Chicago, Jan. 30.—Eddie Collins, second baseman with the Chicago Americans, is not in sympathy with the Baseball Players' Fraternity. Neither does he regard the threat to strike seriously. Collins has a contract running for $15,000 a year and has written friends here that he will be the speediest ball player in the country when the time for reporting comes.

SOX PLAYERS DON'T THINK STRIKE WILL BEAR FRUIT.

(By Associated Press)

Citizens, Jan. 30.—Many players of the Chicago Americans have declared that the strike move of the Baseball Players' Fraternity will be thwarted in its incipency and a few of those who so declared themselves are members of the fraternity and already have signed their contracts. Others are signed to iron clad documents and say that they see no reason to break them.

Ray Schalk and "Lofty" Williams, the latest members of Comiskey's team to sign contracts said they are members of the fraternity but they could see no good reason for a strike. Eddie Cicotte and Joe Benz who have been quoted as against the strike move, also are affiliated with the fraternity.

Eddie Collins, "Buck" Weaver, Oscar "Happy" Felsch and Jacques Poirier all are tied up to contracts with Jim Scott sent word that he was through awaiting the word to go to the training camp, and was not interested in the strike talk.

John Collins, the White Sox representative on the fraternity board, sent a letter to Benz the other day in which he said he was enjoying himself with his baby and skating on the New England rivers, but did not mention anything about the threatened strike.

It looks as if Charley Weeghman has picked a young champion to succeed his baseball players. He proposes to take Chick Evans to the training camp, whereas he should have selected Willie Hoppe. Willie can do more with Ivory than any man we know.

YOU MARK MY WORDS ANY MAN TAKING A BIGGER CUEW OF W-B CUT TOBACCO IS AN IDIOT. YOU'RE RIGHT SIR! SEVERAL OF OUR MEN USE W-B BECAUSE IT'S RICH TO ACCORD AND A SMALL CUEW SATISFIES YOU WANT GLUTTONS ON THE POLICE.

LEAVE IT TO THE POLICE OFFICERS TO FIND OUT WHAT QUALITY TOBACCO.

YOU notice a fine regard for appearance among the officers from Roundsmen to Captain—that's one reason they are so keen for W-B CUT Chewing. The pass-word among these gentlemanly fellows is "If you won't take a little chew don't take any." No need to disfigure the face, when a nibble of rich tobacco gives more satisfaction than a wad of ordinary stuff—also less grinding and spitting. Take a tip from the officer on W-B.

CIONI TAKES MILE EVENT; LOCAL BOYS IN TONIGHT'S RACE

Wins First Event of Speed Carnival in Fast Time.—Local Boys Enter Two-Mile Race.

Taking the lead almost at the end of the race, World's Champion Cioni upheld his title in the mile race last evening when he rolled in a close winner in the final heat of that event at the Auditorium. His time was probably the fastest ever made on the local rinks, and while not a record, is far above the average on rinks smaller than this. Before the negotiations the distance of one mile, fourteen laps, in 2 minutes and 59 seconds.

Before a fair crowd of state enthusiasts, the six champion racers who are in Janesville for three days this week for a series of championship spins

SAYS TIGER ELEVEN LACKED IN BRAINS

A frankness that is admirable is expressed in a letter to the Princetonian, the college publication at Princeton university, in which the late lamented football team coached by Speedy Rush is given a name that completely absolved Rush from all blame. The writer says:

"Last year our team was accused of being 'yellow' and a 'bunch of quitters'; this year it is termed an organization of 'no brains.' The latter is undoubtedly the case; our team was a dub team.

"It is pretty hard for any coach or set of coaching to instill brains into a crowd of seniors, when they haven't got them; they won't acquire them in two months' practice. The team lost the Harvard game through lack of the proper thought, and the Yale game a week later for the same reason.

"While I want in no way to criticize the coaching, I do think there was a combination of the backfield that could have overcome this weakness; however, past is past; the team lost. Mr. Rush lost also, partly due to his own lack of experience and partly and mostly because he was dealing with a bunch of bachelors who were entirely at a loss to make a quick intelligent decision when the opportunity presented itself. Too much importance cannot be laid upon teaching the players of next year's team to think for themselves."

Without mentioning any names, there are certain holdover members of Princeton's team who could take this heart-to-heart talk to their own hearts and do wonders for the team next fall. It is a lamentable fact, but the less said, the better, that the young man who penned the missive to the Princetonian whacked the old nail squarely on its battered head. The Harvard game was lost by poor thinking, and the Yale game was lost for the same reason.

Imagine a youth who plans to use a great deal of intelligence in overcoming this life's obstacles calling for a forward pass with a football just yearning to be pushed over a goal line by straight rushing. That's just that fact.
